This book is dedicated to the founders of Macon, who are buried in Rose Hill and who, by their labor and commitment, were responsible for Macon's establishment and growth in becoming the city as we know it today.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Anyone who has ever undertaken a writing project knows one does not get very far with the work without the able assistance of others. We have been helped in so many ways as we pursued this project over the last eight or so years. At the outset, we needed a comprehensive listing of marked graves. In order to obtain this, we had to walk through the approximately sixty-seven acres of the cemetery making notes of each stone. Assisting us with the walk through—which subsequently was repeated twice to insure accuracy—were Marguerite Matthews, Richard Palmer, Margery Harrison, Bill Elliott, Anthony (Mike) Mikus, Jr., and Jack Wood. We very much appreciate the work each of these people performed in helping us to compile a list of marked graves at Rose Hill.

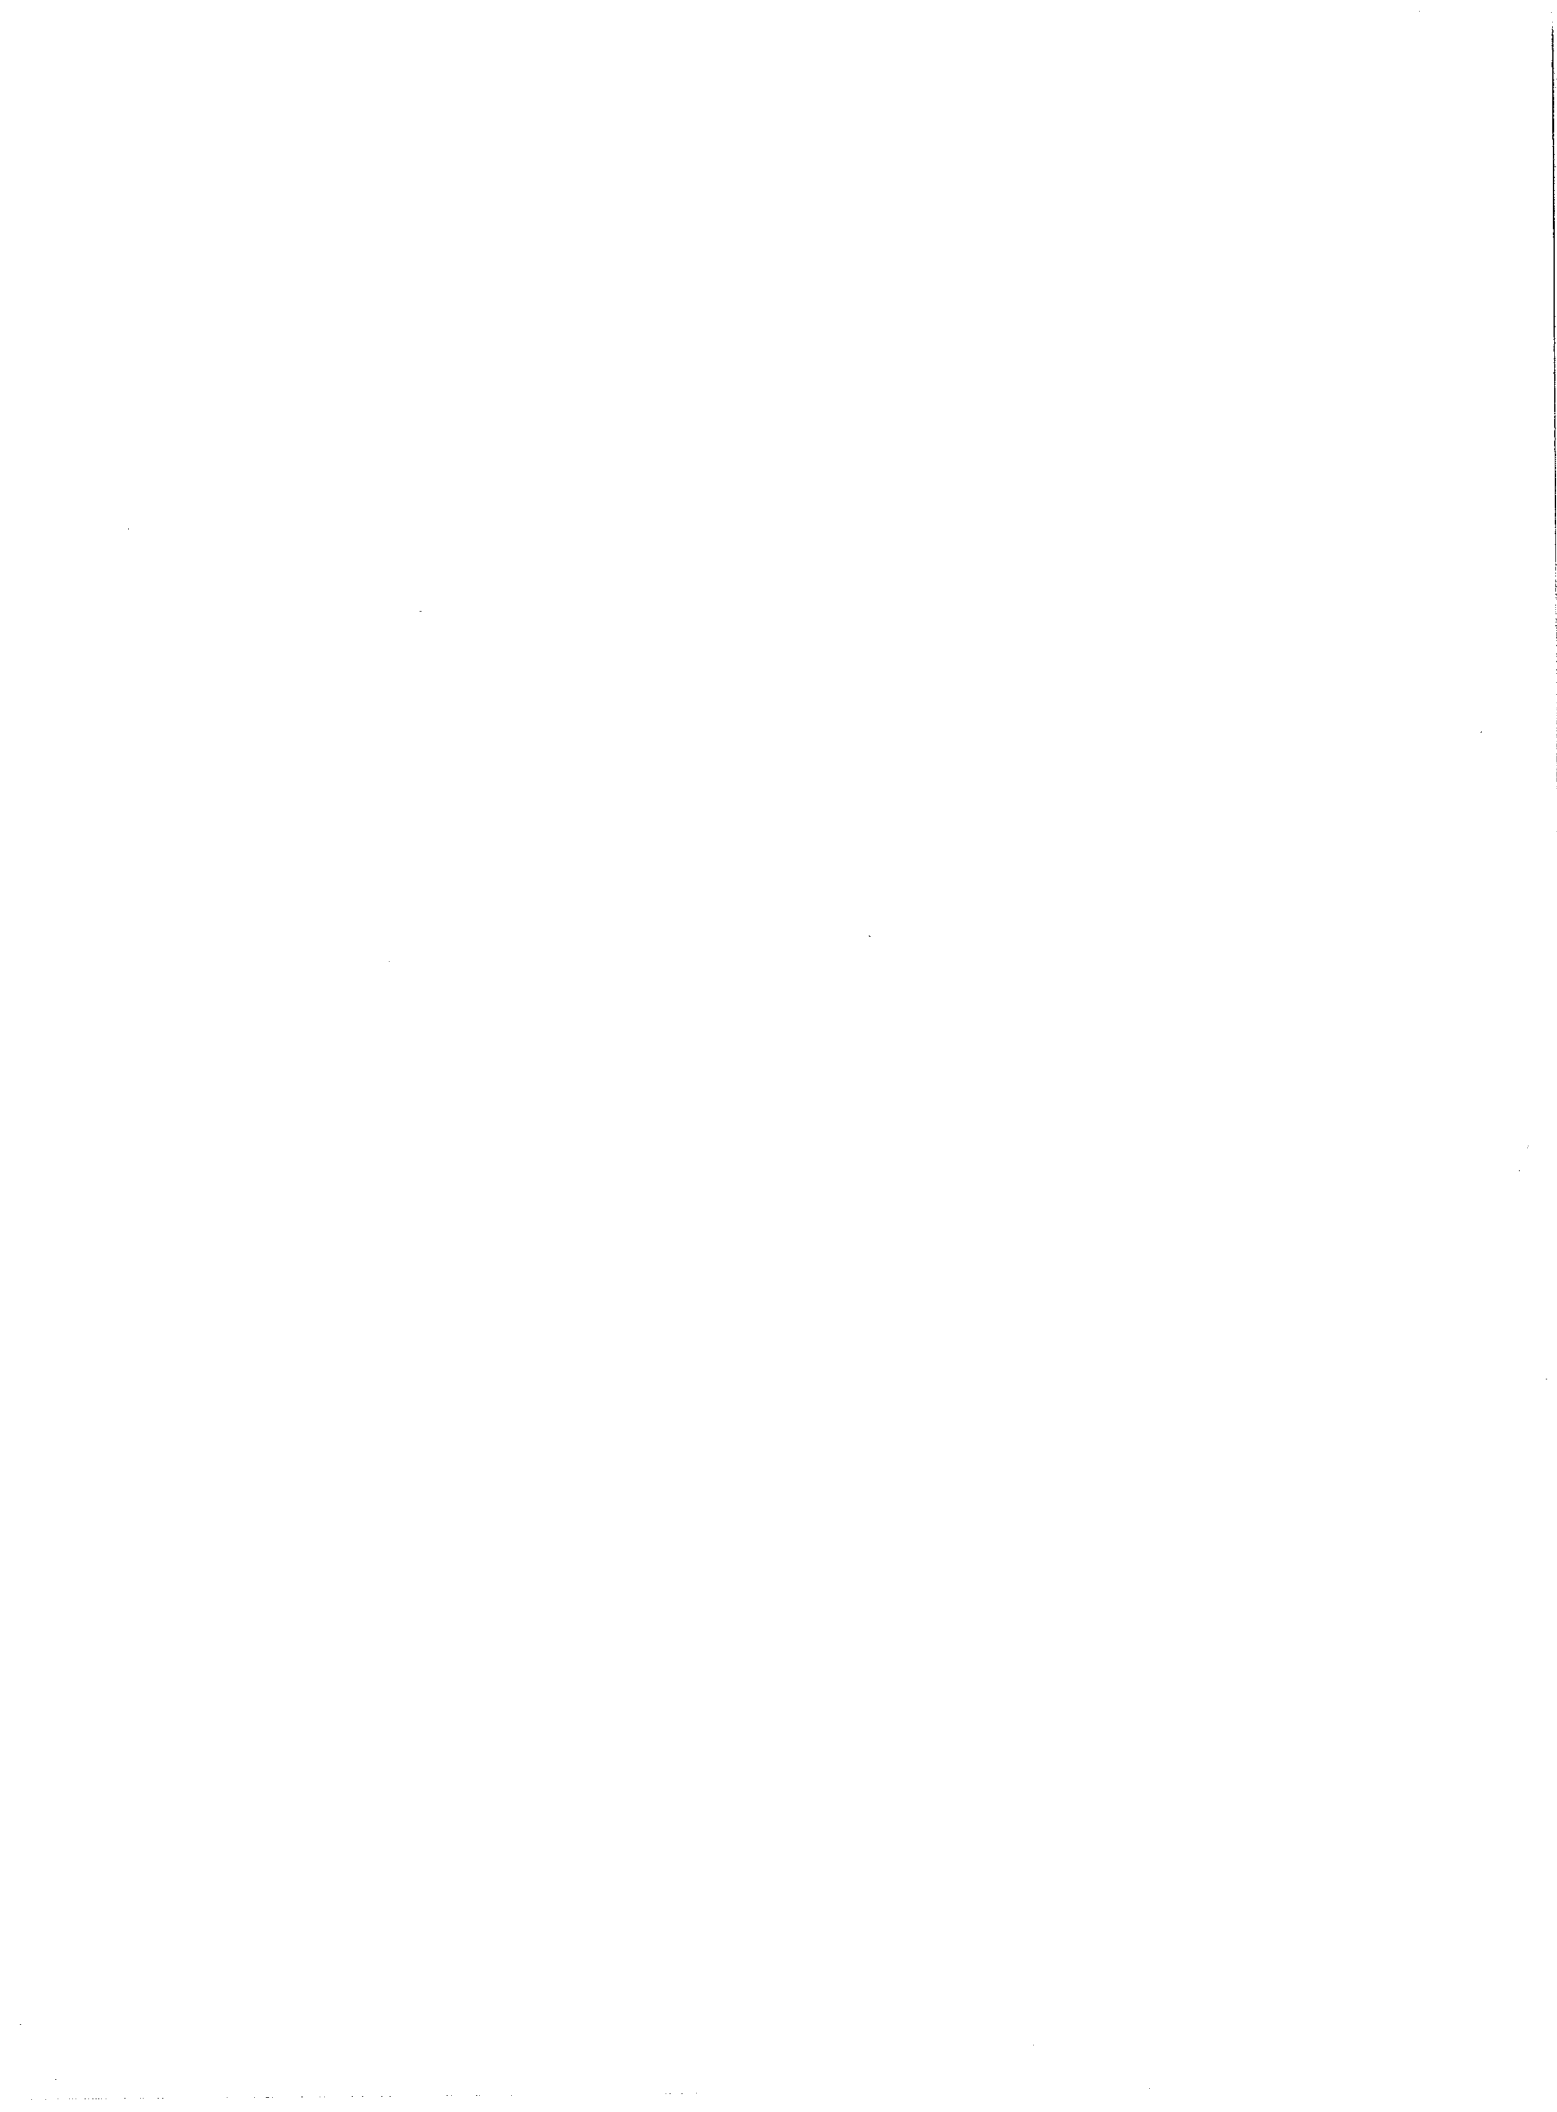

Candace Oakley Birdsey joined us in reading microfilmed interment records and Macon Telegraph obituaries. Candace and her husband, Buford Birdsey, Jr., also were our boon companions many hours as we worked in the cemetery. In addition to the encouragement they offered, various members of the Historic Rose Hill Cemetery Foundation encouraged us as we continued to work. This support for the project was often a sorely needed motivation.

Rose Hill Cemetery is owned by the City of Macon, along with Fort Hill Cemetery and Evergreen Cemetery. Among her many duties with the Department of Parks and Recreation, Marvia C. Mitchell serves as sexton for all three cemeteries. Her kind assistance throughout the process of compiling this work always has been most appreciated.

We have also benefited from the work of other researchers, especially Ed and Linda Hallman, who transcribed the Rose Hill Cemetery Interment Books for the years 1840 to 1871 and 1896 to 1915, and the late Gus Kaufman, whose love for Macon and his family led to much work on the history of Judaism in Macon. In one of his many books on Macon's Jewish families, Gus documented all known Jewish burials at Rose Hill. Gus Kaufman's generous spirit, his depth and breadth of knowledge, and his good humor will long be missed by his fellow local historians. To him and to the Hallmans, we, and all others researching Rose Hill Cemetery, are truly indebted.

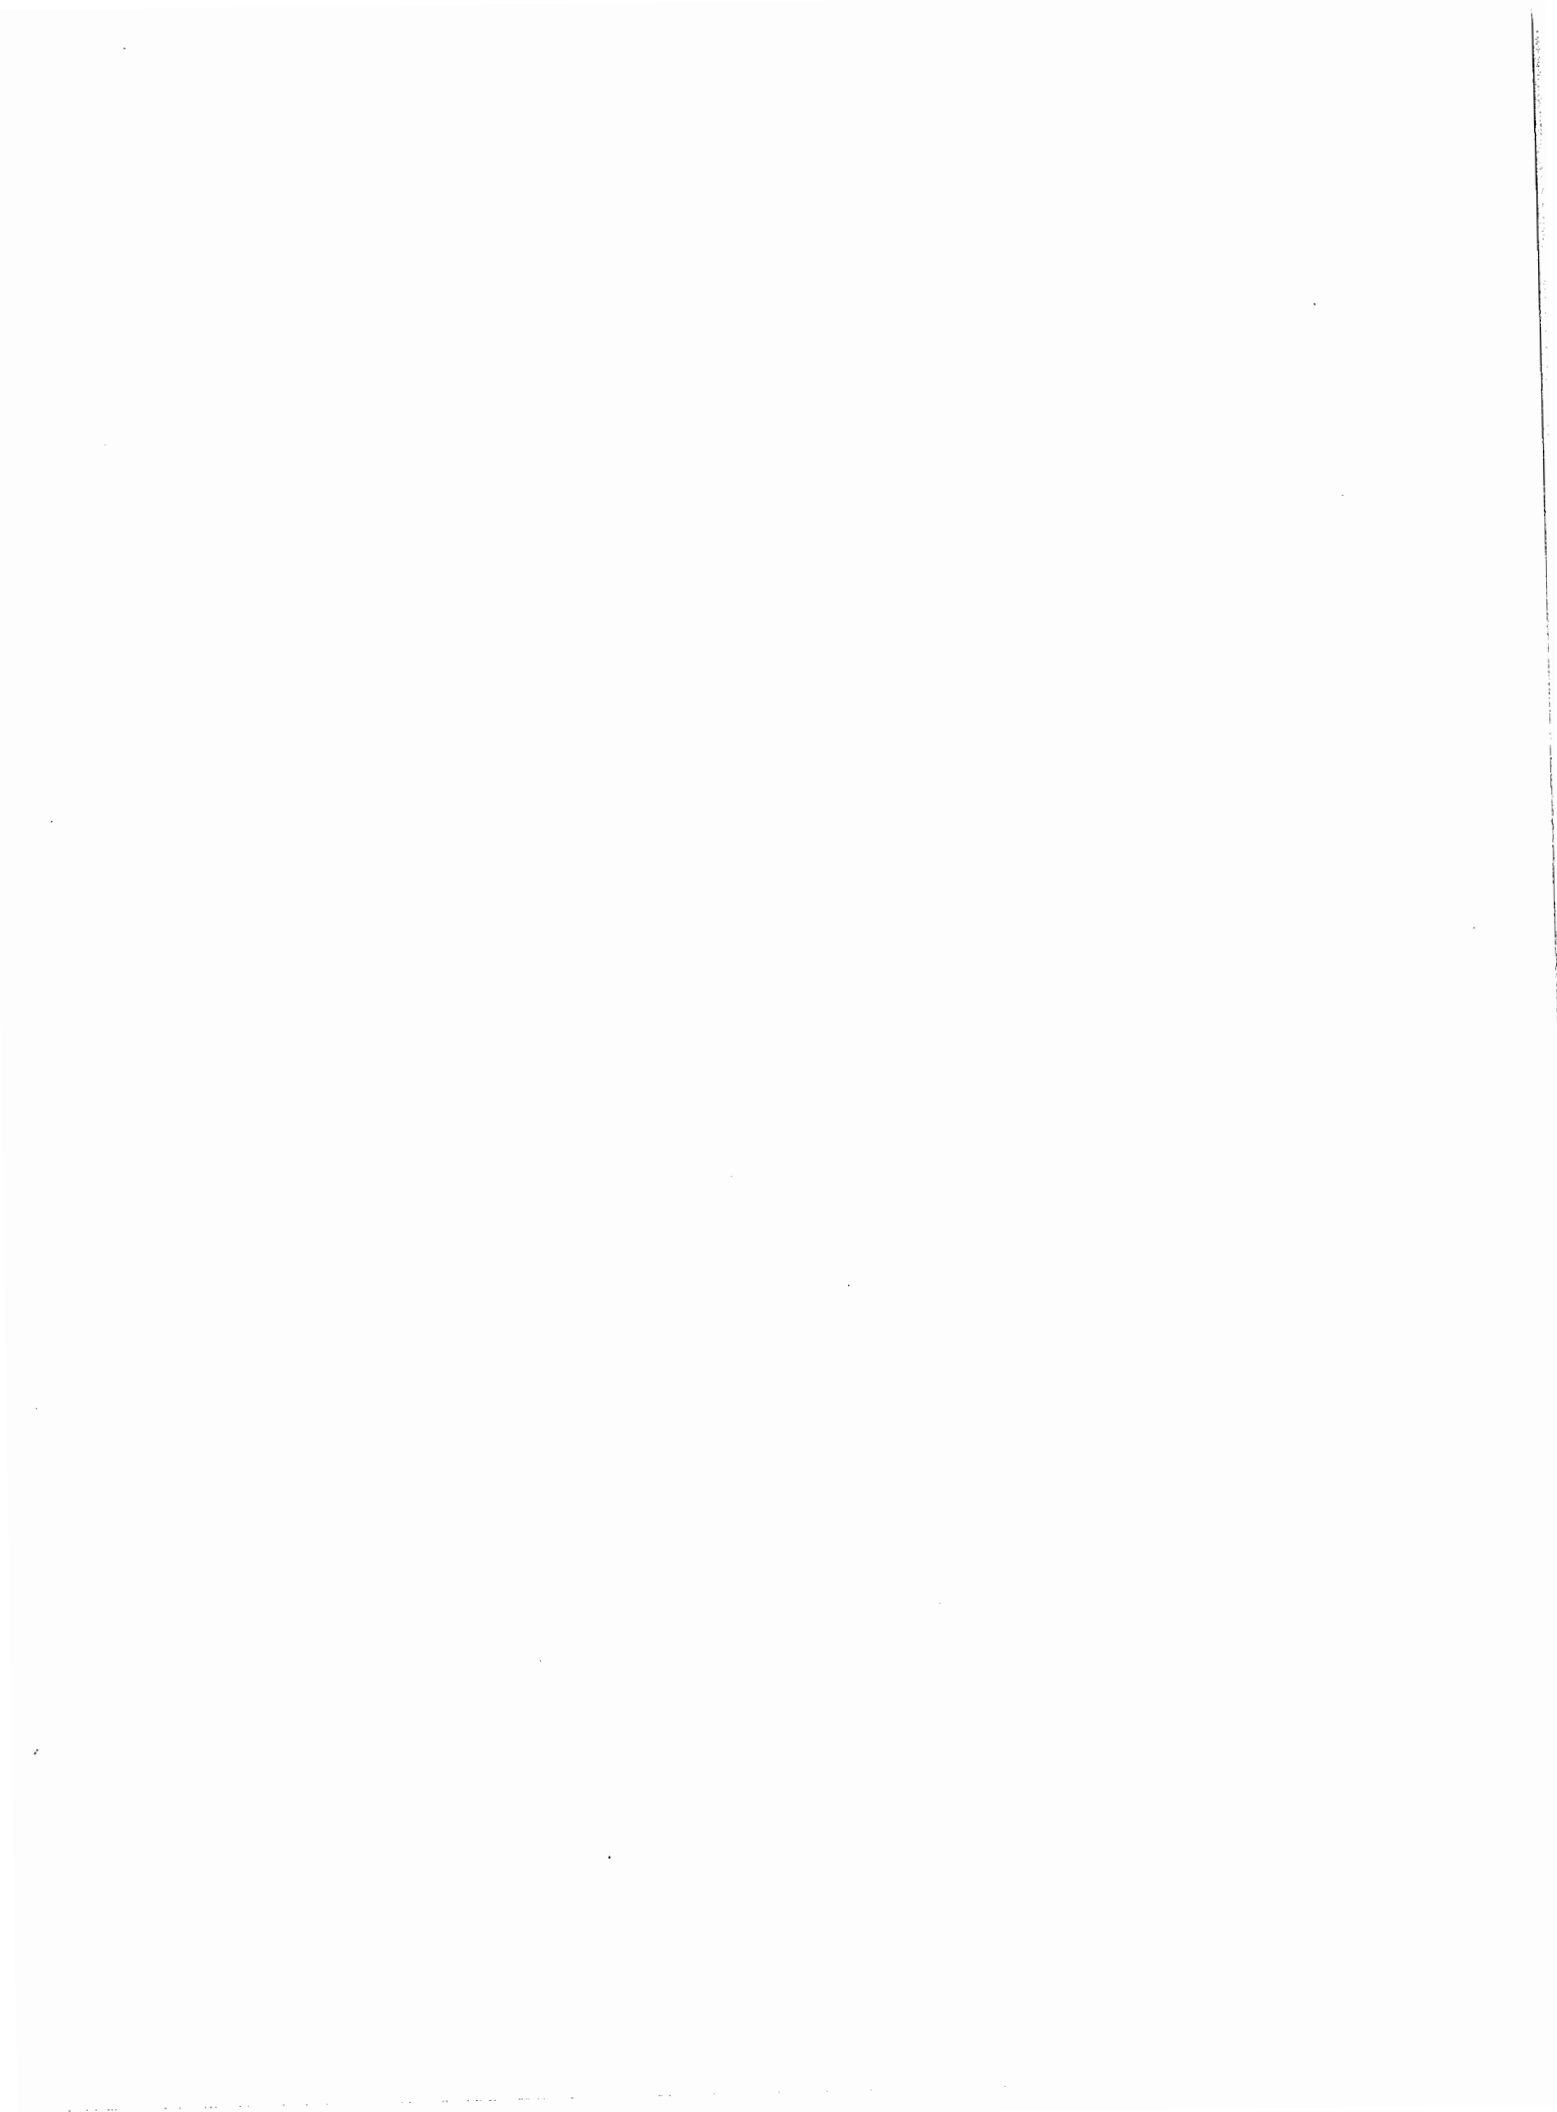

Theresa Amos devoted untold hours in compiling an index for the work. For this tremendous undertaking, we owe a special debt of gratitude. Finally, the majority of our work was in researching interment records, newspaper obituaries, family histories, death records, cemetery maps, previous cemetery surveys, and other materials on file in the Genealogical and Historical Room at Washington Memorial Library. As excellent as this facility is, the knowledgeable and helpful staff make it a most approachable resource. Without the very able assistance of Willard Rucker, department head; Dr. Christopher Stokes, historian; Muriel Jackson, archivist; Anne Rogers, and other members of the Genealogical and Historical Room's staff, we could never have completed this work. In addition to assisting us in locating materials, they have helped read difficult handwriting, have worked with us in untangling webs created by contradictory sources, and have offered unfailing encouragement and cheer throughout the eight years of this work. To them we owe an especial debt of gratitude.

INTRODUCTION

Almost immediately upon its establishment at the Fall Line on the west bank of the Ocmulgee River in 1823, Macon became the center of trade and commerce in the Middle Georgia area. Within two decades it was a bustling town with an energetic and forward looking citizenry. After a decade and a half, city leaders determined that a new cemetery was needed to replace the original burial grounds in the square bounded by Cherry, Poplar, Sixth, and Seventh Streets. Motivated by civic pride and a progressive spirit, the city's fathers, led by Simri Rose, established a cemetery that reflected the very latest thoughts in cemetery design—a rural or garden cemetery, situated on the hilly terrain along the Ocmulgee River on the northeast edge of downtown. Mount Auburn, near Boston, Massachusetts, established in 1830, was America's first rural cemetery. Named in honor of Mr. Rose and following Mount Auburn by only a decade, Macon's Rose Hill Cemetery was the first rural cemetery in the Deep South.

Rose Hill Cemetery opened in 1840, with the first interment being that of Caroline Wilson, who was buried on 28 February 1840. Over the years, additional land has been added to the cemetery and sections have been sold by the city to the parish of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church and the congregations of Temple Beth Israel and Congregation Sha'arey Israel. Today, the cemetery, covering about sixty-seven acres, is composed of seven Jewish burial grounds, including William Wolfe Cemetery, which is owned by Temple Beth Israel; the parish burial grounds owned by St. Joseph's Church; Oak Ridge, which was established as a burial ground for the city's black population; and a number of other sections. This book is organized by section, with the sections arranged alphabetically. Thus, the first section listed is Cabiness Ridge, followed by Central Avenue Division, and so forth. Each section is indexed separately, with an index following the listings for each section.

The interment records are kept at the cemetery's gatehouse in the sexton's office. Microfilm copies of the nineteenth-century interment records and deed books are in the Genealogical and Historical Room at Washington Memorial Library. Some of the older records are difficult to read because of poor penmanship and spelling and because of damage to the books from wear and tear over the years. Sadly, much of the damage was done before the books were microfilmed. Often a phonetic spelling of the name in the records will differ from the actual spelling found on the tombstone or in the obituary or other records. These problems obviously also make difficult any reading of the microfilmed copy of the books.

Additionally, the records are incomplete. For six years, from 5 January 1848 to 15 December 1854, no interments were recorded. A Macon Telegraph article by Dr. Roland B. Hall from 17 December 1905 reports that Dr. Hall, upon becoming cemetery sexton in December 1897, learned that no records had been kept for the nineteen years between 1878 and his arrival. Thus no interments were recorded for twenty-five of the first fifty-five years of the cemetery's operation. Finding the original books badly worn, Dr. Hall transcribed the records into new books, which are the books in use today. As copies of originals, these books are subject to errors and omissions committed, no doubt unintentionally, by Dr. Hall.

In 1996, Ed and Linda Hallman of Thomaston, Georgia, undertook the task of transcribing the interment books to produce an abstract of the Rose Hill burials, arranged alphabetically by surname. The result was a two volume work covering the years 1840 to 1871 and 1896 to 1915. The Hallmans inadvertently missed the records for the period between 1871 and 1879. In 2007, while compiling the present work, Jack and Katherine Thomas, using the format established by the Hallmans, abstracted the interment records for the years between 26 June 1871 and 10 March 1879.

The Thomases interest in Rose Hill Cemetery is one of long standing. They have family members buried in the cemetery, and they have a deep and abiding love for Macon and its history. In 2000, when William Britt Messer's Riverside Cemetery Civil War Roster was published, Jack was impressed with the amount of information concerning Confederate veterans in the book. He learned that no similar list of burials existed for the Confederate veterans buried at Rose Hill, apart from the roster of Confederate soldiers who died during the war and are now buried in Soldiers Square. With the deterioration of headstones and the loss of markers to vandalism, Jack felt that a listing of Rose Hill Confederate veterans' graves should be of the utmost importance. Thus he and Katherine decided to undertake the task, using the same criteria and methodology employed by Messer in the Riverside Cemetery book.

They began their Rose Hill Confederate burials project on 19 May 2001. At about the same time Mary Willingham and others were also concerned about the vandalism and deterioration suffered by the monuments and other grave markers in Rose Hill. Working with other members of the Macon Town Committee, Colonial Dames of America, Mrs. Willingham led the way in establishing the Historic Rose Hill Cemetery Foundation in 2001. With their love and appreciation for Rose Hill and their interest in historic preservation, Jack and Katherine became charter members of the Foundation. Jack has served a two-year term as treasurer of the Foundation and is currently on its Board of Directors. He and Katherine have participated in almost all fundraisers, cemetery work days, and other events sponsored by Historic Rose Hill Cemetery Foundation.

While working on what would become Confederate Burials, Rose Hill Cemetery, Macon, Georgia, Jack and Katherine recognized the need for a broader work listing all burials—or, at least, all burials that could be documented—at Rose Hill. Thus, before Confederate Burials was completed in 2003, the Thomases began collecting information on all burials in the cemetery. Assisted by a small number of friends, they started by walking through Rose Hill transcribing existing tombstone inscriptions. Jack and Katherine then compared their transcript with the cemetery survey conducted by the City of Macon in 1959, a comparison which revealed that a large number of grave markers had been lost in the last forty years of the twentieth century.

In documenting the burials, Jack and Katherine have devoted untold hours to checking federal census records from 1830 through 1930; Rose Hill Cemetery Interment Records; Rose Hill Cemetery Deeds; compiled service records for Georgia Confederate soldiers; Georgia Confederate veterans' and widows' pension records; Macon Messenger, Macon Telegraph, Macon News, and Georgia Telegraph obituaries; Macon city directories; the 1959 Rose Hill Cemetery Survey; the 1959 Rose Hill Cemetery Burials List; the 1887 Map of Rose Hill Cemetery; the 1959 Map of Rose Hill Cemetery; Georgia death certificates and the Georgia Death Index; the Social Security Death Benefits Index; and a number of other primary sources, along with a wide range of secondary sources, including family histories, county histories, histories of Macon, and church histories. In short, they have conducted an exhaustive and almost unimaginable search through a vast array of sources in an effort to document the burials at Rose Hill Cemetery. Given the loss of some records, it is likely that Jack and Katherine have missed a few burials, but they have assembled as complete a record as can be compiled with the resources now at hand. My colleagues join me in saying it has been a great privilege and honor to assist Jack and Katherine in this undertaking. Their vision, dedication, and perseverance have resulted in a monumental work, which will long serve genealogists, historians, and the descendants of those who rest within the sacred bounds of Rose Hill Cemetery.

Interred 10-12-1857, removed from Fort Hill Cemetery

{Tombstone is marked: "Willie T. Lightfoot, only son of Dr. Wm. S. Lightfoot. 4-9-1870, age 56"}

This is clearly in error as this would have made him born two years earlier than his mother. Interment records show William T. Lightfoot, April 9, 1870, age 56, buried in Forest Hill, lot 7, block 3, old number 199.

SOLDIERS SQUARE

MARKED CONFEDERATE GRAVES

These 600 marked graves located in Soldiers Square are as recorded in the "Messenger", May 2, 1866 and cross-referenced with the 1840-71 Interment book and the list compiled by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Corrections and additions were made from the "Georgia Weekly Telegraph", May 7, 1866, unit rosters, and from a physical inventory of the headstones.

Wallace Estill, Surgeon, has a monument and a brick slab on lot 12, block 1, Hawthorne Ridge, which shows he died 11-9-1864. This is the same man as Wallace Estell, Surgeon, on row 1, Soldiers Square.

Included in the Confederate Section are 20 headstones in a small area below the fieldstone wall, which has a granite marker with the words: "Bibb Veterans". These are all veterans who died years later, after the war, and were buried by the Confederate Veterans Association. Most seemed to be destitute, and six were living at Roff Home, a home for the poor, at the time of their deaths.

UNMARKED CONFEDERATE GRAVES

These 262 soldiers listed as buried in Soldiers Square are from the Interment book, 1840-1871, as transcribed by Lawrence & Linda M. Hallman. Corrections and additions to the original entries are made from compiled service records and published newspaper lists of the "Messenger", May 2, and "Georgia Weekly Telegraph", May 7, 1866, as supplied by the Macon Ladies Memorial Association.
